Patients often use the Internet to search for health-related issues. Search the Internet for any health-related issue of your choosing. Evaluate the website by answering the following questions:

1. Do the authors have qualifications listed? What are their qualifications? What is the domain? (.gov, .edu, .org) Some of the authors do and some don't, some qualifications include MD, PhD, JD, MPH, FAAAAI, FAAAAI, and RN. The domain is aafa.org so it is an organization.
2. When was the site created? When was the site last updated or revised? I could not find when the site was created, however, the non-profit was founded in 1953. The site was last updated in 2024.
3. Who is the targeted audience? Does the web site present facts or opinions? The targeted audience is those who deal with asthma and allergies or who have friends or family that suffer from these issues. The website supports facts and has many examples of research studies available.
4. How complete and accurate is the content information? Does it agree with other expert sources? (Provide expert sources you researched.) There is a plethora of information, and it is cohesive and easy to follow, it agrees with other expert resources that provide similar information regarding asthma (lung.org).
5. Does the site load quickly? Is it a secured site? Are there graphics, or pictures on the page that serve a purpose? If so what are they and how do they relate to the health issue? I had no issues loading this page and it is a secured page. There are graphics that allow you to access resources such as videos or pamphlets. In addition, other graphics lead to further writing about different aspects of asthma and allergies. These graphics/pictures provide more in-depth information and relate to the health issue by taking the topic a step further and allowing the reader to decide if it is something that may interest or benefit them by looking at the title and/or pictures provided that lead to an additional source of information.
