

Reflection

I fall in the continuum climate of my classroom being a collaborative classroom environment. I want all my students to know that they are a valuable part of the classroom every day that they walk through the classroom doors. I want to teach them to the best of my abilities but I also want to learn from them as well. Learning what they know and what they do not know will help me prepare to teach them better.

At small group time I want to challenge the students more on expanding the activity they are doing and relate it to more than just the activity that they are attempting at that current time. I want to use it throughout the day and week of our classroom weekly theme.
