

I think my learning style is :

I would like to think I was supportive all the way. But I believe that I have so.e laissez faire in me.

I do give the children choices to do as they wish with their items but I do sit back and watch n write notes ( anecdotal). I also allow the children to participate at their level. I believe I'm like this because of the age development in each one is so varied.

From this day forward I am going to be more attentive and a participant In their learning. Maybe provide more language and more child initiated scaffolding. And try to apply age development materials to each but on the same subject or objective. This way I would be able to offer more support to the ones lacking behind.

I have learned a lot in this short lesson already.

Ps on the test...I got the last one right but my finger or phone hit the wrong one. I accept it though just letting you know. I think my learning style is :
