

Where am I on the continuum?

I'm in a supportive role within my classroom. I think it is important to always pay attention to children while working with them as a group and individually and be as engaged as they are with the activity. Is the only way me as their teacher can see where they are developmentally and pinpoint areas where we need to work a little more.

I will continue to listen to children's interest, pay attention to our conversations as well as continue to engage with them while doing any activity.
