

I feel that I fall somewhere between supportive partnership and directive because in some areas I am very supportive joining in and supporting what they are doing, but I also sometimes fall into directive time where I set out and control activities although I always encourage their own style.

I think I should put out more choices of materials a day allow more creative license