

- Summery- my reaction at first was like wow it must feel really crazy in the class but then i thought wow this really makes children like they are really included with the activities and are being hear and i really liked that
- Currently doing - I somewhat do "share control" . I do this by asking a question for example what did you do over the weekend? And each child is able to answer to the question
- Like to try- Some ideas that i have for share control is them sharing dance move movements like in the " moving and singing" article