

1. In the instance it was my close friend's wedding I would try my hardest to attend but if I already had something very important scheduled I would explain to them what happened, most likely if they are a close friend I have their phone number so I would call them and explain why.
2. I try to respectfully calm them down and help them see both sides.
3. I would explain the situation in detail to my boss, in person, making sure that even if I was in the wrong it showed, and I told the truth the whole time.
4. I might email him, but in the long run, he is the teacher and if I did it wrong I did it wrong.