

The article's action was that the RN agreed to allow the CNA to perform a task that the CNA does not have the right to do so, and it is not in their job description. Delegation is essential to understand as the wrong delegation effects can potentially harm the patient and cause legal issues. After reading the journal, the patient has now developed health issues due to the inappropriate delegation (Reiner, 2020). The concepts from class that I understood are the five rights of delegation, which is crucial while working in the nursing field. This week's difficult concepts were understanding patient care prioritization, as most things are important, especially while caring for multiple patients. This week I was most proud of observing a case in the operating room that has not occurred before; it gave me insight into when things happen and how they can be taken care of quickly to assure that everyone is getting the correct care. This week I have learned about myself as a student nurse that it is essential to make the most out of our clinical experience and learn the steps of delegation to the correct licensed personal.
