

My rotation for this clinical is at the wound clinic. My day at the wound clinic was fascinating and enjoyable. I was able to see many different types of wounds and learn a lot about them and the different kinds of bandages used on the sores. A kind of dressing that I was able to see and learn about was vacuum seal bandage. I thought that it was interesting how that drain worked. Also, I was able to see how the doctor has to debris the wound to get all the insufficient tissue out to increase wound healing. If there is no removing of the deficient tissue, it will never heal the right way. I also had the privilege to see delegation done during my time at the wound clinic. One of the nurses delegated vital signs and cleaning the rooms to me to help save them time.
