Week 1 Journal of Learning and Observations

433 Journal

I am assigned to the cardiac cath lab this semester and had my first experience there on Wednesday. It was a good day. I got to start some IVs, watch several cardiac catheterizations, and see a couple of cardioversions performed. The department is a pretty well-oiled machine and is staffed with some very knowledgeable nurses with loads of experience. They demonstrated excellent teamwork. They are all cross trained in different areas of the department. They help each other out whenever needed. I hope to learn more about the cardiovascular system throughout this clinical experience. I plan to brush up on the heart's anatomy before the next clinical to better identify and understand perfusion throughout the heart. I look forward to my next clinical.
