Today's clinical took place in the Emergency Department at Sarah Bush Lincoln. This week's clinical was not very eventful. There were a couple chest pain and abdominal pain patients that I was fortunate enough start IVs on. I was able to administer IV medications as well. In terms of delegation, the charge nurse showed appropriate leadership. She delegated pods to nurses and the nurses delegated tasks to ED techs. There were not many nursing skill opportunities during the clinical day, but the nurses were very open to teaching the students about certain procedures like medication administration and disease processes.
