Reflect on how the following concepts:

Health and Culture:

The nurse must recognize that members of various cultures define “health” differently. Individuals may define themselves or others in their group as healthy even though the nurse identifies symptoms of disease. Cultural priorities of the client may differ from that of the nurse.

Culture and Healing:

Some individuals and families in some cultural groups may also use traditional healing systems, sometimes called lay or folk-healing systems, with or without allopathic (modern) medicine. In addition to seeking help from the nurse as a health care provider, clients may also seek help from traditional or religious healers. Most nurses have experienced clients who combine medical care with prayer. Nurses need to be sensitive to, respectful of and nonjudgmental regarding patients' health beliefs and practices in order to maximize patient outcomes.

Health status of all clients is influenced by the interaction of physiological, cultural, psychological, economic and societal factors. Diversity within and among groups necessitates data collection activities and programs that are tailored to meet the unique health care needs of different subgroups.

Health beliefs are translated into health care practices, which then affect health status. What constitutes appropriate care for specific health conditions may be guided by cultural and social class expectations?

Health Information and Education:

Planning health education programs requires identifying and building on cultural strengths and ensuring sensitivity to cultural factors. Meeting the language and cultural needs of each identified minority group, using minority specific community resources to tailor educational approaches, and developing materials and methods of presentation that are at the educational level of the target population are essential considerations in the planning process. Health programs should be sustainable over a long period of time and accountable to the people they serve.

You will be given a specific scenario upon arriving to the simulation lab. You will then have to act out how you will handle the situation as a nurse. The cultural scenario will be videotaped and watched back by the student and instructor during a debriefing period. Videotaping will be used for evaluating, remediating, and debriefing the educational process. The video will be used for educational and demonstration purposes only.

Once the debriefing period is over you will then complete a reflective activity and turn in to the instructors

Reflective Activity

What are the major take-home lessons for you today?

Within the Amish culture, the females may want female nurses. Also, they may only be able to speak Dutch. A translator may be needed when trying to communicate with these patients. I also learned that it is valuable to make sure every patient receives the quality care they deserve. For example, when this patient was frightened by having a male nurse, we could have ignored that aspect and kept the male nurse. However, since we want to provide quality care we have to care for every need and concern the patient may have.

How can I adapt my nursing practices to be more responsive to the unique needs of diverse patient populations?

As a nurse, I need to educate myself on the different cultures in my area so that I can anticipate their needs. I need to understand the specific steps on how to get a translator present in the room. The main priority that I need to ensure I put first whenever taking care of different cultured people is to show them that their opinions and beliefs are valid even though they may be different than mine.

How can I adapt my nursing practices to be more responsive to patients with limited English proficiency?

Whenever the patient cannot understand the language that we know, we can incorporate hand motions and actions whenever we are speaking to them. If we cannot get the point across doing this, then understanding how to get a translator is essential. Also, depending on the location you are in, you can try to pick up on the basic words of the different cultures in your area. For example, our area is heavily populated with the Amish who speak Dutch, and with the Mexican Americans who speak Spanish. Picking up basic words in those two languages would not only benefit my interaction with the patient but help them to feel accepted when under our care.

- 4) What are some things you have learned today that you will use in your practice?

I have learned what I may come into when caring for a woman of the Amish community. I know that they speak a different language and may require a translator. I also know that they may be afraid of having a male nurse. Therefore, I should anticipate the patient not wanting to be around the men.
