Instructions:

Before Scenario:

- Read pages 95-106 of Chapter 7 “Overview of Transcultural Nursing”
- Read the following pages of <https://www.aacnnursing.org/Portals/42/AcademicNursing/pdf/Essentials-2021.pdf>
 - o Domain 2: Person-Centered Care – Pages 29-32
 - o Domain 3: Population Health – Pages 33-36
 - o Domain 5: Quality and Safety – Pages 39-41
 - o Domain 9: Professionalism – Pages 49-52
 - o Domain 10: Personal, Professional, and Leadership Development – Pages 53-54
- Read Review the following QSEN competencies at <https://qsen.org/competencies/pre-licensure-ksas/>
 - o Patient-Centered Care
- Reflect on the following concepts:

Health and Culture:

The nurse must recognize that members of various cultures define “health” differently. Individuals may define themselves or others in their group as healthy even though the nurse identifies symptoms of disease. Cultural priorities of the client may differ from that of the nurse.

Culture and Healing:

Some individuals and families in some cultural groups may also use traditional healing systems, sometimes called lay or folk-healing systems, with or without allopathic (modern) medicine. In addition to seeking help from the nurse as a health care provider, clients may also seek help from traditional or religious healers. Most nurses have experienced clients who combine medical care with prayer. Nurses need to be sensitive to, respectful of and nonjudgmental regarding clients’ health beliefs and practices in order to maximize client outcomes.

Health status of all clients is influenced by the interaction of physiological, cultural, psychological, economic and societal factors. Diversity within and among groups necessitates data collection activities and programs that are tailored to meet the unique health care needs of different subgroups.

Health beliefs are translated into health care practices, which then affect health status. What constitutes appropriate care for specific health conditions may be guided by cultural and social class expectations?

Health Information and Education:

Planning health education programs requires identifying and building on cultural strengths and ensuring sensitivity to cultural factors. Meeting the language and cultural needs of each identified minority group, using minority specific community resources to tailor educational approaches, and developing materials and methods of presentation that are at the educational level of the target population are essential considerations in the planning process. Health programs should be sustainable over a long period of time and accountable to the people they serve.

In the Skills Lab:

- You will be given a specific scenario upon arriving to the simulation lab. You will then have to act out how you will handle the situation as a nurse. The cultural scenario will be videotaped and watched back by the student and instructor during a debriefing period. Videotaping will be used for evaluating, remediating, and debriefing the educational process. The video will be used for educational and demonstration purposes only.
- Once the debriefing period is over you will then complete a reflective activity and turn in to the instructor.

Reflective Activity

What are the major take-home lessons for you today? To be aware of all cultures and their beliefs. That many people that I will come in contact with will not have the practices as me and I should be able to accommodate with that and be understanding without judgment.

How can I adapt my nursing practices to be more responsive to the unique needs of diverse client populations? Being aware of the need for cultural competence, avoid making assumptions and not being afraid to ask. Learning about different cultures that are prominent in the area and practicing good active listening.

How can I adapt my nursing practices to be more responsive to clients with limited English proficiency? Using a translator, finding learning material with their language, and using pictures and being attentive to facial expressions.
