

You are part of an interprofessional team caring for Susan. What interventions should be included in her plan of care? What educational topics regarding bipolar disorder should be discussed with Susan and her mother?

I would say that with with bipolar they are more likely to to have mood changes and feel very giddy at times and other times really down. They would also act more impulsively.

I won't lie my answer was pretty far off from what they said, I was more thinking about what bipolar is and not how to care for it. One of the main points they made was to stay firm with her and conduct constructive teachings with her.
