

Legacy Project Summary

During the spring 2023 semester, this student and their peers gave their time to Habitat for Humanity in Danville, Illinois. Habitat for Humanity is a beneficial program because of its efforts to construct, renovate, and maintain homes; advocate fair housing laws, and provide families with access to resources to assist them in better their living conditions; Habitat for Humanity of Illinois is dedicated to eliminating substandard housing. This student and their peers helped Habitat for Humanity Restore stock and arrange donated products as part of their community service. Reusing used home goods is environmentally beneficial because this action allows locals to purchase them for a lesser amount and keeps the items from landfills. Using the earnings from the sales of donated goods, Habitat for Humanity collaborates with local families to construct, restore, and repair safe and affordable homes.