Noticing	Interpreting	Responding	Reflecting
Why did you choose this additional assessment? What did you notice during your additional assessment of the client? Were there any assessments that were abnormal or that stood out to you? I chose this additional assessment because the client has a past history of suicide attempts and current suicidal ideation. <hr/> The client seemed very relaxed, and read her book as she answered the questions on the ASA Tool.	If something stood out to you or it was abnormal, explain its potential cause or patterns that you noticed. Describe any similar situations you have experienced / as well as the similarities or differences between the experiences. Is your interpretation of the situation links to pathophysiology at all, if so - briefly explain. The client had no abnormal findings, she states that in this place feels safer than home. This was the first time I was unable to observe abnormal findings. After reading the client's chart she may not feel open to talking to strangers.	What additional assessment information do you need based upon your interpretation? What can you do as a nursing student? What did you do? What could you do as a nurse? I would want to know if lately she has felt unsafe, any mood or behavior changes, feelings of hopelessness, or neglect within her household. As a nursing student asking open-ended questions will help the student gather data about the client, this allows the nurse to hear about the client's experiences and current mental health status.	What is something that you learned? What is something that you might do differently in the future? What is something that you did well? What additional knowledge or skills do you need to help you with future situations like this. Describe any changes in your values or feelings based on this interaction. One thing that I would do differently is interview the client without looking at the chart first. I did well communicating with the client and encouraged her to continue reading.
