

Reflective Activity

What are the major take-home lessons for you today?

The major take home from today's lesson is to make sure to understand each pt. is different. Being a nurse, we should not assume that each pt. will be cared for the same. We need to give the pt. preferences so we can meet their pt. needs.

How can I adapt my nursing practices to be more responsive to the unique needs of diverse client populations?

I can adapt my nursing practices by simply just asking the pt. for their preferences. I feel like this is the best way to get the information needed for how the pt. wishes to be cared for.

How can I adapt my nursing practices to be more responsive to clients with limited English proficiency?

Adapting to limited English speaking pt. is simply to make sure we always have an interpreter. If the pt. primary language is not English, then an interpreter must be used to make sure the pt. understands all education within their care.
