

Leadership Journal 1

During my first two weeks of clinical, I have seen a few instances of concepts that we have learned about in Leadership class. I have seen several instances of delegation between members of the healthcare team. During my CCU clinical rotation, there was a new nurse that was training on the unit, a nurse in the new nurse residency program, and then myself along with another Lakeview student. One of the nurses that had been working on the unit for a long time took it upon herself to delegate tasks to the rest of us when things got busy. She had the new nurse that was in training take report from ER on a patient, had the new nurse from the residency clean a room, and had the two of us students help out wherever we could. She did a good job delegating, and it helped everything run efficiently during the busy times.
