

1. What has changed with our relationship to the Law?

What has changed with our relationship to the Law is the fact that we as Christians no longer need to make animal sacrifices to God for our sins to be forgiven. Christ dying on the cross means we can now have a relationship with God in our hearts instead of going to the temple. The Law also shows us that we sinners can never obey every Law which is why Christ came and died for our sins to pay a debt that we could not pay.

2. How does the Law still help us?

The Law can still help us because it can reveal things about ourselves that we need to work on. The Law also shows us that we cannot obey every single law and obeying the law does not get us into heaven. Only by the blood of Jesus Christ are we able to enter heaven.
