

Q: What did Justo Gonzalez write about Irenaeus' "grand vision of history"?

A: Just Gonzalez says that there is a grand vision of history found in Irenaeus, through which the divine purposes unfold. Gonzalez also points out that the incarnation, in the person of Christ, is the focal point of that history.

Q: When did the Jewish and Christian religions really become divided into two different sects?

A: The Jewish and Christian religions became divided into two different sects, following the siege of Jerusalem in AD 70, at the hand of Emperor Titus.

Q: What did the Epistle of Barnabas have to say about abortion?

A: In the Epistle of Barnabas, it is clearly stated that one cannot claim to be in the way of light and at the same time slay the unborn or the born.

Q: What was the legend of Ignatius? Was he an acquaintance of the actual apostles? What does that mean to us about passing down apostolic truth?

A: Ignatius became bishop of Antioch by command of Peter. He wrote many letters and heroically and boldly faced his death sentence under the reign of the Emperor Trajan. Ignatius was closely associated with apostles such as: Peter and John, which makes him a very reliable source, seeing how he had the opportunity to walk with those who had walked with Christ.