What I have learned so far

I am Jessica Drew and it is april 6th and I am 15. So far a lot of the information I was taught has been a good touch up on what I should improve on. I already have a savings account which learning about different saving techniques was also very helpful. I think learning about this is a good way to teach you what is a good type of account to use. I also think this lesson was good on teaching the importance of saving. I think I should work on y spending habits more and realise what is more important. I should start to put more into my savings and use less for unimportant things. It's not always on my mind how important the money i make weekly is and this section helped a lot with it . Also watching the video on the difference between credit and debit was very helpful. It really taught me how responsible you need to be with your money. I didn't really understand the differences or the outcomes that can happen if you are not responsible on your spending. Credit score was also something didn't know how it worked, and the video was very good at giving information to understand it more.
