1. Judging from these reconstruction and photos, what factors shaped the layout of early settlements? That is, what concerns did the builders of these settlements have? Did they change over time?

By looking at these pictures, I get a sense of security, isolation from the rest of civilization. Not easily accessible, more private. Maybe those in charge, the elites be inherent in there because of stature, the way the place built. It seems as if the concerns of the builders were to protect those who ruled. This has changed to a degree over time because it is not an isolated area, it is accessible however private.

2. What information can these reconstructions and pictures not tell us? What would like to know about these settlements that this kind of evidence can't tell you?

These reconstructions appear to be in a seclude area, it doesn't appear to be other civilization around. It would be interesting to know the purpose of the buildings, how they get their source of food and how they connected with the others o
