

Sul cho Woo

HIS114

Ohara Lyndell

10/11/2021

How did Napoleon gain and hold power?

-He gained power through his military experience and dominance in the battlefield against the European nations, He soon took over the political party in France during 1799 in coup d'etat and crowned himself as emperor later on in 1804

What did he contribute to the ongoing development of a modern state?

-one way he helped develop the modern state was to build up European education system, teaching the modern people how to read and also bringing in education for females during his time, He also wrote many deals with the surrounding nations to build a founding steps that help led to the build of the European alliance.

How is the Revolution in France different from those in the United States & Haiti?

-the French Revolution is different on many factored for example the battles that was fought on European lands exceeds far greater than the American revolution and in Haiti. The French and Haitian revolutions were able to propel the idea of democracy and the ideal of equality far beyond the boundaries established by the American Revolution.

The revolution in France was also fought to bring a new way of modern democracy and laid its foundation for the United states and Haiti.