Romans

Apostle Paul under the roman laws as a roman citizen and a christian jewish was not. It was a tough life as he got to bring the gospel to the gentiles to let them know about the return of christ. The book teaches us about christianity life and the work of the apostle that was revealed to him by Jesus to tell the good news. He got a chance to travel all over the roman empire, to the nonbeliever , and around the whole wide world to spread the Gospel of Jesus. Paul was working for the kingdom of God during his ministry and he also made a big impact in the lives of others.

Neil Elliot explains about politics and the doctrine in the church in Judaism where Paul became a servant of God. Paul unexpectedly met God on the road of damascus from persecuting the disciples of christ. After all that happened to the apostle, he was a changed man trying to know the word in order for him to teach the gospel to others. He was interested in knowing the lord more and being a devoted follower where he mentioned in (philippians 4:13) "I am able to do all things through him who strengthens me." His prayer was for God to teach him to look up to Jesus in everything that he was doing.

Paul as a diaspora jews had a strong desire to preach the gospel to the roman empire in the same way he was persecuting the jews people with zeal, he had that same energy to bring the good news to the nonchritians. The Romans were really dangerous to the people of God, and now Paul has brought many disciples of gentils to Christ, because he was working with perseverance to reach out the lost souls and bring them to God no matter how his persecutions was.
