What I learned from the first video was about Habeas Corpus which in Latin means “ You shall have the body” which also means you have are born free with liberty with rights that is why when someone is locked up they cannot just hold them there without a phone call or telling them their rights because it goes against their rights as a human and because it is their right to know why and what they are being held and charged with because of Habeas corpus. Now entering into the second video I found it interesting on how prisoners have constitutional rights which are often displayed differently on tv shows .I personally feel like prisoners aren't fully aware of their rights while they are incarcerated . There are rights that are given as prisoners are treated humanely and given equal access to the legal system as said in the videos “ What rights Do Prisoners Have? Pt1 & 2) which are the right to Due Process which they cannot be stripped from all their property or freedom or apparently transferred without having acknowledged of such being done and their 8th amendment prohibiting cruel and usual punishment and so much more.
