

Phl paper1

Name;Folake Subuloye

Class;phl 101

Plato

Epistemology is the investigation of what distinguishes justified belief from opinion. Plato Knowledge is initiated and is developed Deep inside the soul that allows it's a guide our like a unifier Plato is the most important philosopher who ever lived. He is very known as the father of ideas and important.

Plato believes that they are different forms of knowledge he believes that a leader have to have a logical and a reasonable knowledge before he or she can be a leader plato point of view make me realized that a leader isn't just anyone you have to have the ability and mentality to be able to lead the people and also the way everyone leads its different and the methods we all used are likely to be different .According to Plato there are three different forms of knowledge the proposition must be believed,he proposition must be true; and and the proposition must be supported by good reasons.

Which it's basically saying you must be able to explain and be held accountable in case anything goes the other way and you have to be able to believe it you can't just be a leader without believing in it or without believing the people around you.

A leader must have a reason for doing what he or she did. Plato can be described as a good leader in the society because of what he did not only because he had a theory it also because he achieved his aim. Plato thinker's view of knowledge regards education as a means to achieve justice, both individual justice and social justice.

Plato believed that there is a huge difference between believing something and knowing it. We may believe it but it does not mean we are on the right path. Since truth is objective, our knowledge of true propositions must be about real things that are happening in the society, not just imaginary things or things that do not exist.

There are some real things we believed in. The real things we believed in are called Forms. Forms are the eternal and immutable blueprints or models for everything that is. Consequently, they are more real than their particulars. we attain plato knowledge

A true knowledge, its awareness, of something that is true and facts. I also feel like true knowledge is when someone does research and they have evidence and facts to back up their theory and the theory is proven to be true. According to philosophers true knowledge can be justified true beliefs. In order to gain true knowledge I feel like we have to set aside all features that seem strange to individuals and seek the shared features that describe them into different categories. I really like Plato's views of knowledge because he explained and gave us the types of forms of knowledge that a leader has. He also explained to us that they are different types of leaders in society.

In conclusion, plateau shows that virtue can be obtained through three stages of development of knowledge: knowledge of one's own job, self-knowledge, and knowledge of the Idea of God.