- What cultural group do you plan to spend time with?

Is there a thing called white cultural? I would like to spend time with people who identify as White/Caucasian.

- Why have you selected this group?

I selected this group because this is the only group of people I struggle to connect with at work or at school. I don't interact with this group of people as much nor do I believe identify with them. I struggle with engaging in conversation with people of white cultural. When I do speak with someone of a white cultural, they make it weird when they say things like; I voted for Obama, or I support BLM. It doesn't seem genuine, but again I don't take the time to get to know them.

- What is your current perceptions about this group? What are your fears?

My current perceptions are they have life a little bit easier than other groups of people. Sometimes clueless to some issues other groups may have to face or deal with. My fears stem from my ancestors and the pre-judged mindset that whites don't like black people. I struggle connecting with this group because I was taught whites did not like blacks. This mindset came from; Slavery, Segregation, Confederate flags (which I see more often in Georgia than I did while in NYC), Donald Trump during his time as president did not help.

- How will you access this group - videos, online services, interviews, etc

At my job, I will attempt to have a conversation with one or more of my white peers. Start a conversation and discuss things outside of work and get to know them better. I will inquire if one of my classmates in a different class will be open to being interviewed.
