In Fox, - read ch. 7, “The Peace of Wild Things” (181-222) and do an exercise that appeals to you. I suggest using an exercise on page 211, page 214, or page 217, but you may freely choose another.

Page: 214 “Your relationship with nature - Writing your sense of mystery”

The mystery of life
they want to unravel it
They want to reveal everything
But it's kind of unusual

Live your life
for death must come
Forget its mystery
Just live and that's it

God created the rose in the likeness of woman.
The rose represents beauty among all flowers and woman beauty over all the earth.

The stem of a rose is its strength and the soft petals like a woman's skin.
The fragrance pure and sweet as the woman,
the leaves represent the woman's arms who are always open to give love.

Love the mystery of life
An interesting topic indeed
But it's better to live it
Than try to figure it out

“The Peace of Wild Things” (181-222)

Animals as metaphor: -Select another exercise you might want to lead the class in doing, do it, and say why you would use this for others.

Going through the daily routine my mama cleans my fur
She is my mom and i only want her

I am shy though curios wanting to know the world
But I am left in attached to my mamas belly, curled

When she leaves I get left in a spot to not to get lost
Because she goes to look for food and it's at a high cost

Protects me from predators and keeps me on her sight
That why when I get older and leave, I'll remember each night

Oh my mama, has always be the one to keep me safe and tight
So that's what I will be for you my son, your knight

This gives the individual completely the exercise of thoughtfulness and patience about their own characteristics that make them bright like the sun.
