

Pauline Garthrs

Professor: Dr. Turk

HIS: 113

Worst Jobs in History

- (1) The main points that were clearly portrayed in this film illustrated that the wind power, the water power, and the strength of the workers was vital for these jobs to be completed. Without these natural resources also included the rays from the sun. The use of the animals played a significant role as well for the completion of the jobs. The elements that were conveyed in this film were absolutely necessary to get the jobs done.
- (2) The job of egg collection was one of the most dangerous and worst jobs. Other jobs involved teamwork, egg collection was a one man's chore. I can only imagine how dangerous collecting the eggs from the edge of the cliffs was. Without proper handling eggs can easily get broken or worse, one careless mistake could turn into a fatal fall for a worker. I know in order for humans to survive, there are a million jobs to choose from. I commend these egg collectors that risk their lives everyday to collect these fragile eggs.