

My Favourite season

My favourite season is winter, During those really wintry months, the temperature drops below zero and it often snows. Over the last few years we've had periods of quite heavy snowfall, to the extent that roads have been blocked and schools have had to close. Last winter I remember looking out of the window one morning and seeing everything covered in a layer of white.

Obviously the snow is what differentiates winter from the other seasons, but when it doesn't snow there isn't much difference between winter, autumn and spring; winter is just a bit colder.

The reason I've chosen winter as my favourite season is because I like the snow. I live near the countryside, and the landscape looks beautiful when everything is covered in white. Snowflakes are fluttering in the air, after a short while, we become snowman, the ground like a beautiful blanket. The trees were all covered with white quilts. The whole city became a silver world. I love snow, because it is pure white, it brings us hope and vigour.

Furthermore, all of my favourite holiday all in the winter, We celebrate Christmas and New Year in the winter, and also Thanksgiving, it's super exciting. Chinese New Year is the longest and most important festivity in the lunar calendar. On the eve of the day, we will celebrate with families.

Undoubtedly, Winter is also about comfortable, sitting by the fire, enjoying the delicious food, sipping liquor to keep you warm, waiting for Santa's present, just kidding.

Besides the warm life in winter,the winter rainy day is very special ,the wind with cold rain dripping down,the sky overcast ,like a big stone on the top of the head pressure,the people a little suffocating ,it also contains a different kind of beauty,although not sunny,the rain walking silently ,you have fire ,are conceived as a wonderful season,waiting for the beautiful bright spring.

In conclusion ,winter is my favourite festival and I really want to see winter in every country in the world.
