

Prepare a brief 3-5 page paper on your abilities, passions and ideas for a potential entrepreneurial venture; this should include an honest assessment of your existent skill; potential skill gaps that you would like to address; a discussion on passions that drive you; as well as a potential venture(s) that you would like to explore and possibly develop.

I really believe in the human power in the work, in this case I'm not speaking about the human strength as we can find in all factories around us, but I'm looking to the emphasis that a person could put on a work done by himself.

I know that what I'm thinking about is strange, maybe difficult in the present market, in a certain way isn't easy also to explain.

I believe in a potential venture that welcomes everyone who has an idea new to the market and need help to develop it.

What I am speaking about is not a selfish and just profit type of entrepreneurship, it is something else, it is like an ideas's entrepreneurial venture.

It's a place where every person who is making all for his cause and his idea can discuss freely with me about that and then we will decide if the concept should have market in the future, so we can develop it.

I'm not stealing someone else's idea, I just want to give importance to some ideas that could or maybe could not find a breach in the market.

When I talk about 'idea', I'm referring to a new product idea, something that is not present in the market, not a new way to produce a product already present, an innovative product, not an innovative production way.

I really don't know if it could work, I'm just thinking about how my personality could match with a manager position way of thinking in the modern entrepreneurial world, where two of the basic theories are selfishness and machine work, I'd like to try this new way of making business to give importance to all the human beings who have been rejected or in the worst cases never heard.

I'm 22 years old, not too much I know, but I always lived for the persons, hearing their thoughts, their secrets and their ideas but what passionate me more is the way every person think, from the selfishness to the most kind person, there are million and million way of thinking, for this reason I think that my venture could have a future, maybe it will need time, a lot of time, but as the past has taught us, the most successful ideas came from hidden men that has been sometimes rejected from some big selfish manager.

I'm not saying that all the managers of the new market are bad persons, I'm just thinking to my personality and my way of thinking wearing the dress of a manager and I can't be so selfishness.

Maybe my point of view could be transfigured, I'm not speaking about this potential venture just to put some solidarity and kindness in this selfishness business world, I really believe in myself and I'm a soccer player, a sportsman, and I don't really like losing.

About my skill, I can say that I have an innate leadership spirit that helps me to be followed in my ideas.

Another strength of myself is that I bring out the best in people, this is my favourite skill because the way how I do that is simply be kind, listen to who is in front of me and give him a smile. I really appreciate myself in that way.

Like all of us, I have surely some negative aspect, sometimes when myself is in some strange situation or whatever is a new situation where I have never been, I lack confidence in myself.

But, I always want to improve myself and when I'm lacking on something I will challenge it; like I'm doing in this moment.

I begin this experience to challenge myself in a completely different world and to improve, beyond my English, my business skills and my personal skills.

I have a creative mind and a group work spirit that helps me to achieve my goals with fantasy and in a different way from the others.

I came here, in the US, to go out from my comfort zone and to discover which possibilities this country has to offer to guys like me who have the desire to get involved in new challenges.

I'm coming here as a student-athlete and so my curiosity about the soccer here is really high, I'm not speaking just about the athletic part but I want to discover all the marketing and financial things which are hidden behind what we see.

I want to find out the real reason why there is no such interest in Europe about the college sports and the student-athlete's figure.

Personally, I played soccer at high level in Italy but when I finished my compulsory studies at 18 and I wanted to start the university there, it was impossible.

In Italy, or you play soccer or you study, there is no chance to do both at high level.

For this reason I'd like to discover more about this market and all the markets of the sports here in the US.

So, beyond my crazy idea of the ideas's venture, I would like to study and elaborate on the sport management here.

In the future, when I will enrich my knowledge about that, I'd like to bring it to my home country if it will be possible.

I'm very curious about the MBA course because it seems really different from the way I learned in Italy, we were more than 200 in the class so it was impossible to discuss each other about what we were studying, I think the way of studying we use here in the US is much better because you can compare your idea with some guy who has a completely different cultural background and it could be very helpful.

About what I have to improve, for sure my writing, this is my first brief in English, as you can see, but I think that write in Italian and then traduce in English was unhelpful so I gave a try and I hope it will be fine.

Giselle already sent me two links to improve my writing and I will look at them.

This last part reflects what I said about my lack of confidence but in this case the confidence that I have in the writing is justifiably low.
