Who Are You?

My name is Marissa Morris and I'm from Brooklyn, NY. I am currently a biology major, and I hope to switch to Nursing soon. To me, Jesus is the man that can see everything hear everything, and be everything. He is someone I can talk to freely at any time of the day when I need him, and he listens. I dream of being a cardiothoracic surgeon and my original plan was to go to the John Hopkins school of medicine, but things did not go as planned. I admire my parents so much because without them motivating me to continue with school I would not be in college right now and I really appreciate them for that.
