Who are you?

Hi Professor, my name is Jamie Willix. This is my second semester here at Alliance University. I am from Connecticut in the Fairfield county area, so not too far from here. It is about a two-hour trip to visit home. I am studying Accounting at Alliance, as well as playing for the volleyball team. I was born and raised in a Christian home. I have seen God change my parents' lives, as well as my sisters so God has almost meant a lot to me in my heart. Jesus to me is my outlook and my life, even though I struggle at times to take the right steps with him, he is always there for me and I always feel his presence. Even though I am studying accounting, I actually want to be a marketing freelancer and run my own business. I love to design so my dream would be to be able to work from home designing logos and advertisements for companies, as well as setting them up with marketing strategies. Besides that, I want to have a family and live somewhere that I can surf in the summer and snowboard in the winter, as well as coach a club team for volleyball. My older sister, Mason is someone I admire so much because she allows me to have hope in these dreams. She started as a small scale sales representative in a knife company, but within just two years made over 100k while working part-time hours at her own pace and now manages teams and has contracts with companies that will buy these knives monthly. On top of that, she works at a law firm and is attending night law school. She also coaches volleyball on the weekends. She literally does it all, and still goes on vacation and travels about twice a month. I have always been in awe of her hard work and I will always admire her.
