1-Describe the four assumptions underlying the biopsychosocial framework employed in this book for assessing human behavior concerns.

Before assumptions underlying the biopsychosocial framework in assessing human behavior concerns Ask to deal with looking from a biological, psychological, and social concept in theory. This is based off of a systems thinking that a person is made-up of different body parts, that is affected by how they are raised within their family and culture within their community. This involves multiple systems that has different stages and levels of placement within a family and society while interacting with others on a daily basis within their environment.

2-Compare how risk and protective factors affect developmental outcomes.

Risk factors are those things associated in life during development that could negatively impact a person's developmental outcomes through their lifespan. Protective factors all those things that help to protect a person from exposures in life that could be negative and not bring out the best outcome. Risk and protective factors assist social workers and assessing the client to have a better understanding of how society upbringing may affect one's behavior.
