

Christians have unwittingly have distance ourselves from the nature of God our Creator. This is something I have seen before but nothing to the extent. “The more we separate ourselves from the transcendent Creator, is the less significant we become”. (Oswalt, 2003,58). As the world continues to become more modernized especially with electronics the further our thinking becomes distant from our creator. Oswalt reminds us to take heed to the words of the prophet Isaiah who tells us that “the way to significance is not through our arrogance, or how much we think we know but through humility. Learning how to serve others. (Oswalt 2003, 58). I learned that in society (Christians included) we have become more self-centered, instead of God centered. One of the major things that troubled me, is that we call on the name the Lord on a regular basis but perhaps our hearts are distance from the creator.
