QUIZ #1

Name JP Coture

1. Robert Sloan said the biblical model of leadership begins with God what does that mean?

This means that when looking at leadership biblically, we must first look to the greatest example of leadership we tangibly have, Jesus Christ. In Jesus, we find our biblical model of leadership and its behavioral and conviction patterns.

2. Christ was a knowledgeable amazed the crowds, how does that inform leadership?

This informs leadership by reminding us that biblical leaders lead knowledgeably. Jesus was a thoroughgoing interpreter of scripture who criticized then formulated Israel's role and mission. Jesus knew on his reading of the Law, Prophets, and Psalms that the scriptures had been profoundly misunderstood. Jesus was knowledgeable and spoke with authority from what he knew in scripture, life, reality, business, work, and many other aspects of life.

3. Name and briefly discuss the central features of the biblical the model of leadership.

The biblical model of leadership is founded on the ministry of Jesus and his ministry. Some of those central features include Knowledgeability, gathering circles of learners, correcting quickly and impartially, public and common teachings, devotional life, shrewdness, risk-taking, an uncompromising view of the provisional nature of possessions, a strong family and marriage view, and honoring truth in and in speaking.

4. What does "streams rise no higher than the source and fish rot from their head first" mean?

This speaks to the foundational truth that the body will only be as strong as its leadership. The anointing flows from the top down. Ultimately, Christ builds his church, but we are called to be good stewards of this work. We are called not to be lazy, but to take risks, empower others to succeed, and be leaders like Christ was. To be committed and God honoring individuals, above reproach.
