There is a gap between rich and poor students in school. It is important to understand the percentages of money given to private charter schools, public charter schools, versus public schools. Discovering this would help solve the problem of financial loss in public schools. Contributing to this research, America can understand better what the government is giving or the lack thereof towards public schools. If there is proof in this research that there is a bigger gap between public schools and private charters in finances, there needs to be a solution to this problem. This report will show America how to solve this problem.
