Record Labels

I have always wondered how things work in the record labels, how they get paid, and how they gain resources. After watching the video, I realized how it must be difficult for an artist to succeed in his career with such low royalties and be responsible paying for the producer and the executive producer, if there is one. I understand now why an artist is tied to her producer; it is mandatory to support someone who will pay you for your work or have a truce with the person that can contribute to your failure. And most of all, I know now that if you cannot negotiate, you will end up with whatever they offer you because of your need to debut in the music industry. To sum up, the relationship between an artist and his producer results in the artist's abilities or responsibilities to pay her producer after the success of each recorded single; also we can now understand how a record label works.
