Reflection book 1-5

In book one a language that seemed significant to me was at the beginning when Enkidu was with the animals and did everything with the animals and committed no sins. I can relate this to the book of Adam and even when they were in the garden naked but since they have not yet sinned they did not see each other naked until after they committed the sin. Another way book one relates to the real world is when a bully feels superior over someone else because they are stronger than them just how Gilgamesh felt superior because of his strength and this allowed him to do whatever he wanted to do. The character that is highlander is Enkidu. The way Enkidu is developing is by his mind opening up to new things. At first Enkidu only was led by nature so he did not know the power and strength he held until he had an encounter with Shamhat, a woman. In book 2 one of the meaningful sections was when Gilgamesh was going to bridge house because she was going to open up to her king before she married and then Enkidu was standing at the door for Gilgamesh and they started to fight, after tussling Gilgamesh was proven to be the stronger one but at the end they became true and close friends. I say this was a meaningful section because both gods were equal to each other, same power, strength, both perfect and the fact that they both had a fight but then became true friends shows a meaning to this section. In book 3 Gilgamesh decided to embark on a journey to kill Humbaba. Everyone told Gilgamesh not to but his mind was pretty much decided on going to kill Humbaba. In book 4 a section I would say that is meaningful was when Gilgamesh was having dreams. I say this is meaningful because dreams can predict what is going to happen. The dream

Gilgamesh was having looked as if he lost the fight against Humbaba but they had bigger meaning to it. An important human message I would say would be that even though a person does a bad thing does mean that, that person is completely evil. I say this because Gilgamesh at the beginning was doing hurtful things to the people but after he fought Enkidu and became friends show that he isn't a bad person after all, he just let his power and strength get the best of him.
