

Hittite Kingdom Hierarchical Pyramid

How does your society resemble other societies in this chapter? How is it unique?

One thing that resembles other societies in this chapter is the presence of a king. Harappan societies may have had this, though it's not certain that this is the case. The Sumerian City-State had the presence of a king, whereas old Egypt had the presence of a pharaoh. Many of these have their chiefs listed somewhere in the middle, with peasants landing near the bottom of the pyramid somewhere. What makes the Hittite kingdom most unique in its structure is the presence of the Heir-Apparent, who serves as a second to the pharaoh and holds many responsibilities.

“The Hittites and Ancient Anatolia (Article).” Khan Academy, Khan Academy, <https://www.khanacademy.org/humanities/world-history/world-history-beginnings/ancient-egypt-hittites/a/the-hittites#:~:text=to%20the%20Hittites.,Government,all%20aspects%20of%20the%20kingdom>.