

My Covenant

Talking about Jesus is a beautiful topic. My conversation about His qualities, such as mercy, love, helpfulness, and carefulness, could last hours if I dove into His Scripture. Furthermore, I may talk about how God has transformed and is constantly transforming several aspects of my life. In life, there are times when we must overcome difficulties and difficulties we never anticipated. God has given me a new chance a new beginning, new dreams, and old dying goals resurrecting again. God has been there with me in my darkest moments, the times there was in hopes for me for a future. The covenant to God is as follows, spread the Gospel, serve Him as much as I can, and knowing Him more every single day. I most I want is to reflect what God's love has been shown to me to the world. Wanting the whole world to know who God is.

Solemn Covenant

- 1- The eternal and omnipotent God is the universe's ruler. When we become His children, God removes from us the darkness and evil that we have been seeing as creatures in this world. He is continually looking for us and shaping our hearts since they are so ferociously evil. For the rest of my life, I want to commit my entire being to you. I reflect on my transgression and say, "YES, I accept you," but I also look forward to my new life with You. I used to feel gloomy, forlorn, and enraged; I was a sinner trapped in this broken world. Lord, when I learned to know you, you changed my inner being. For instance, Adam's transgression caused us to lose our ability to live ideal, happy lives. I acquired this depravity and the punishment because I am Adam's direct descendant. I would even attempt this surrender by bending down before You.
- 2- Lord, please look at me; I am merely a disgusting being. I beg you to send your Son in the likeness of me, with unending and eternal love. He will combine our humility into sinful nature's perfection. Because He will serve as the go-between for us and you, Lord, Jesus will become our new covenant. As you said, whomever believes in the Son will live forever, right up until the day of your return. When Jesus came and gave his life on the cross, He sealed that covenant with his blood.

- 3- I shall agree to the provisions of this covenant before every witness from heaven and this world. I accept Jesus as my Prophet, Priest, and King because I believe in Him as my Savior. Consequently, God's sanctification of wisdom and righteousness has been fully restored. I am prepared to tame my rebellious hearts as a result, even though I occasionally have thoughts. I will triumph over any challenge by turning it over to your wisdom. Please take me and put me to use for all you need.
- 4- Please remember me when you judge the earth with the Angels and Saints, and maybe by then I will be in heaven with you for all of eternity. Keep in mind that I must never break this commitment when under temptation. Because of my weaknesses, I will inevitably fail, but grant me the courage to get past them. God, however, is my savior and gives me the strength and assistance because You love me.
- 5- I am not to have glory or honors in this world as part of the covenant with your holy words. Have eternal life instead since I am not acquiring anything or accomplishing anything in my new life except for you. Give me the Holy Spirit in copious amounts so that I can enter heaven. Give me access to Jesus Christ's whole range of spiritual blessings.
- 6- I am now a new soldier of the cross and a follower of Christ, so I have only one King, even if that King is Jesus. Consequently, "My Lord," stand by me and give me strength always.

7- Put me where you want me to be, neither affluent nor poor, and feed me easily accessible food. For instance, I might be affluent and ask, "Who is the Lord?" or I might be destitute and steal. Please always keep me safe with your holy spirit and in my heart. Be led down by the peaceful stream safe in Him, sipping rivers of salvation, and be infinitely pleased with my God.
