

Celine Grothe

Lyndsey O'Hara

World Civ 1

February 6th, 2023

Research&Writing Assignment 2

The Kingdom of Hittite existed by 1340 B.C.E and in the following text, I will talk more about the hierarchy and the cultural frame back then.

The Kingdom of Hittite had an easy and really flat hierarchy. It had three different classes. On top of the pyramid was the King. He had the highest standard of living. Under the King and in the middle of the Pyramid we can find the warriors. They belonged to the government. At the bottom of the Pyramid, we can find the class of the freeman farmers. They had a really simple life (Celt | History, Institutions, & Religion | Britannica).

We don't know that much about the Kingdom of Hittite but it's official that they were really advanced in processing iron and steel. They were able to "create(ed) tools and weapons that were more efficient than those made of bronze" even though there were in the bronze Age (The Hittites and Ancient Anatolia \(article\) | Khan Academy).

This hierarchy is similar to other kingdoms because it has a King and that is kind of what it means to be a Kingdom. It also has different classes and the bottom class is always the one that has most of the people. That's similar to most of the Kingdoms.

But there is something special about this Kingdom. It's just a threefold hierarchy. That means it's a really flat hierarchy what's unusual because most of the time there are multiple classes like a rich class and a really poor one and then also a lot of slaves. But this Kingdom is mostly freeman farmers which means there is not a huge class society because above the freeman farmers there were just the warriors and the King.