

Discussion 3

3) What were some of the inventions in this society?

The first invention in this society was the creation of a legal system for the people. That was supported by the creation of a feudal system of government. The feudal system of government was also the basis of the teachings of Confucius. Another invention in this society was the ultra-modern bronze casting. Therefore, their weapons for the war were made of bronze. Silk, which was also an invention, brought in money as a good side effect. Furthermore, the following inventions had a significant effect on the entire world: paper, printing, development of writing, production of maps, rice, milk, and oars for ships. For example, without inventing paper and printing our world would be a completely different one right now. Thinking about what we would do without paper or without a printer gives me headaches. Our world would definitely not be as globalized as it is now.
