

Gratefulness

In the presence of God and with a sincere heart, I make this covenant to thank God for all the things in my life that he has given and gifted me and all the standards I can live with that are not appreciated enough.

My family comes from a very poor environment and city and when I was born my parents just made it to leave Chile for a better life in Germany. From then on I kept living in a small apartment and was surrounded by a bad neighborhood. My mom only has a residence permit so she isn't allowed to work and that was very hard to deal with in the beginning. A few years later my father was fired and found a new job in which he made a great and successful career with which he is able to finance my education here at Alliance University and make a living for the rest of our family.

With this Solemn Covenant, I commit to thanking the Lord each and every day for everything in my life even the littlest thing. I promise to thank the Lord for a warm building I can sleep in, I promise to thank the Lord for a bed I can lay in, I promise to thank the Lord for a warm shower I can clean myself in, I promise to thank the Lord for an opportunity to get my education in, and I promise to thank the Lord for having an eye on my family and looking over us.

This promise will help me remember to be thankful every day and not to take things for granted. I will keep this promise by working hard in my studies and personal growth, and by being a positive influence on those around me. I will also try to help others in my community who are struggling as my family did. I believe that God will guide me and take care of me, and I promise to follow His plan for me. This promise will show how good and faithful God is, and I hope it will encourage other people to be thankful and trust Him too. Amen.
