My Solemn Covenant

I fully turn around enough to face you, Father. I pledge my commitment to you as my God, to Jesus Christ as my Lord, my Savior, and the Way, and I ask the Holy Spirit to live inside me more fully than ever before heaven and earth. You are the holy, righteous, and divine Creator, Father. You are just and forgiving. My commitment to you is everlasting as I am one of your children and I will always be. You have carried me through everything since I was born and now that I am getting older I now realize that I need you more and more daily for things. You are very powerful you see and hear it all good and evil, you see your children on their bad days, and you see them on their good days. My almighty God you are always here to listen to what I have to say I come to you for everything. But because of this I will never act or pretend like I am not a sinner as I do own up to my sins and regret what I do. I don't believe this makes me less of your child because in my heart I feel as if you still accept me for me and as I continue to work on making our relationship stronger, I realize that more and more.

Sometimes I think to myself how can you still accept me and love me after all my sins? I always thought that I would go to hell when I die because of this. Yes, I know I'm still young and I still make mistakes sometimes I still give in to temptation which is very bad, but things happen, and I learned to not beat myself up for it as much anymore.

I am committed to you because I know you have died on the cross for my sins and you died so I can live. I owe everything to you Almighty God and I will not disappoint you because I am committed to being one of your children who are proud to have you as a father. I will always keep you in my heart and in my soul as I am able to live a peaceful and happy life because of you.
