My dedication to God started many years ago when I was in middle school. I was influenced by my parents, who are women and men of prayer. I saw them serving, giving, and showing me love and mercy. That was my first experience of knowing the love of God through them. At the moment, I'm in a challenging season, but I know it is not going to be forever. I believe in the power of God, and I believe He is Almighty.

My dedication to myself got rooted five years ago when I started serving the Lord in a community church through the youth group. Since then, I have been growing spiritually, and I have changed positively through the years.

My dedication of myself to God is to give up my desires and let him intervene in all my plans. I want Him to guide me step-by-step in every season of my life.

I dedicate my life to Him, to my Heavenly Father and Lord, with a thankful heart.
