Subject: Introduction to the Class

Hello,

My name is Samara Phillips-Hines, I am from London, England. I currently attend Alliance University studying Business. This is my third year at Alliance University, I previously attended Rowan College at Burlington County in New Jersey for one year before transferring to Nyack College in 2020. I came to Nyack College to represent the women's soccer team.

Being highly involved in soccer allows me to work well within a team environment. I am used to giving and receiving instructions from my teammates in order for my team to excel. I am used to taking constructive criticism from my teammates to reduce any mistakes in the future. Being part of a soccer team also allows me to work well in a team because of the off the field bonding. This means we do alot of team bonding outside of soccer such as movie nights, bowling, vacations and much more. By doing this it helps build team cohesion and team morale which could potentially enhance our performances on the field.

I consider myself to have good communication skills. This means I can verbally communicate to somebody effectively. By communicating clearly to a peer it resembles confidence. I think confidence is an important life attribute. Without confidence it would make socializing harder and completing certain tasks harder, therefore the saying confidence is key applies in daily life.

I believe that being part of a team is better than being an Individual. This is because by being part of a team you are able to receive feedback from your teammates in order to improve. You are also given the opportunity to give feedback to your teammates to help them improve. Also being part of a team is more fun, interacting with people and finding out more about others.

In this semester I hope to learn more about organization and time-management. Also more than just verbal communication. If I learn more of these factors I believe overall it will make me more efficient.

Kind regards, Samara
