

Jonas Max Trofort

World Civilization

February 13, 2023

Today's World

“In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth” is the first sentence in the Bible and this single sentence establishes the nature of the cosmos by explaining so many things at once. Within this sentence, we find the acknowledgement of creation of this universe by an entity that operates outside of this universe. This sentence also validates that this universe was created intentionally; it was not a random and miraculous inception. The natural world was created by God for His glory and so that His creation can exist in.

When looking at the social order of the world, we see that society has morphed and changed over time. The government has established laws, rules and regulations that dictate the social boundaries and expectations for human interaction and action. Due to technological advancements there has also been a gravitation toward social media to establish the rules and regulations for the society. Social media has begun to dictate what is right and wrong, what is acceptable or not. The social order, at a point in time, was established by the founding fathers and had the illusion that it was based off of biblical principles; however over time we have seen that society has strayed away from these biblical principles.

Ethics used to be guided and influenced by biblical principles; for example, murder, stealing, and honesty were all built off of principles found in the bible. Now, society seems to be more dictated by social media and has deteriorated in the standard for ethics. Murder is justified and accepted depending on race and social class. We see this with the acceptance of certain deaths in our media. Media will much easily ignore the deaths of certain social classes and races as compared to others. This causes desensitization over the years and then changes the standards for society. There was behavior that before the rise of social media was taboo but now has become the norm. For example, there was a time where people's bodies were covered and their nudity preserved. Now, you can not open up social media without watching a small video of women standing in their bra and underwear and then getting dressed live online. It is unfortunate and at this time rate social media will destroy the social constructs that we know and respect today.