

Orlando Martinez

Professor OHara

World Civilizations 1

14 February 2023

Defining the cosmos, nature, and individual ethics many philosophers back in the day believed in a higher power or higher being. They often would talk about logic and how philosophers at the time would think a lot of things and teach a lot o things and tell people a lot of things. These ideals still guides our societies today and shape our frame, early philosophers were very influential and many of their teachings are still being taught and told today. They did contradict each others a lot.

My religious faith is important to me mostly just my faith, politics is a part of it to becuase depending what you believe in politics are going to have a view that may help you religious view or support it rather than help.