

" The supervisor- supervisee relationship is an extremely important aspect of the social work student's educational experience. You may come to admire and respect your field instructor for his or her knowledge, abilities, competence as a practitioner, and willingness to serve as a mentor". Think about the person that is providing you supervision and discuss what do you find exceptional about your supervisor that creates the space for a leaning opportunity.

The person that is providing me with Supervision at The Salvation Army is Aloyce Simpson. Aloyce is very knowledgeable in the field of social work. She mentors many students from colleges and Universities throughout the tri state area. What I find exceptional about Ms. Aloyce is her willingness to go above and beyond to help me to understand the importance of social work. She has been one of my greatest motivators, she finds resources to assist me in the field, plans activities and events that I can attend to broaden my understanding of social work and is always willing to have a conversation with me when I need clarification on certain clients or behaviors.

During supervision Ms. Aloyce ensures that we go over the goals from the previous week, answers any questions that I may have and confirms with me my time sheet hours for that week. Ms. Aloyce and myself read and go over my process recording for that week and set our goals for next week. Her attention to details and organization skills are exceptional and comforting to me as they help me to keep on track and to pace myself.
